

ByBox opens in Paris 2256

A Paris office has been opened by ByBox, the overnight parts delivery specialist that operates a network of box banks and delivery boxes.

The company has announced plans to replicate its UK parts delivery network in France, and says the new 500 sq m office will provide a focus for its intensified French operations. It is in the Port D'Orleans district, within easy reach of Charles de Gaulle airport.

ByBox already has strong connections with France, since its wholly-owned factory is at Le Mans. It was inherited from the Logibag business, which built ByBox's box banks from the start, and also has a major presence in the left-luggage locker market.
